This presentation of 104 pages is about travel quality. It contains our raw concept. It is the trailer for our forthcoming book:

The way to highest travel lust by mindful traveling

The book will contain our full concept.

Here we show a compilation of ideas. We don't talk about the competencies.

The book is very different: It will have three parts

- (1) explain our concept comprehensively,
- (2) explain the travel life and concept of the best traveler of all times,
- (3) contain the list of the highlights.

It is the travel know-how that I accumulated over 24 years of traveling. The last 12 years together with my partner Teo, after he got his German passport.

It is the know-how that we wish we would have had at the beginning of our travel career. It would have saved us time, much more than the reading time for this presentation. If you have no time, you might appreciate the summary, p. 94.

Teo gets them all

Teo and I were travel partners. He is the doctor, I am the organizer. We are very different but complement each other, a successful blend, a bit like Yin and Yang. We are one of the two couples among the extreme travelers.

Frank Wigand Grosse-Oetringhaus, born 1942, raised near Cologne and in Hamburg, studied in Berlin, PhD near Frankfurt, corporate consultant in Siemens from 1972 till 2001, trainer of the top management in strategy and corporate development, he wrote the Management System of SIEMENS in 1992, associate professor for 18 years at the University of St. Gallen, CH as a side job and other teaching assignments in strategy in Germany and the USA. Frank cares about the planning and organization and optimizing. He is responsive to all comments you might have. Altogether he has traveled for 24 years.

2006 Frank became a registered partner of Teodoro Murallon, born 1949 in the Philippines, Doctor of Medicine in Cebu, Anaesthesiology training in Germany, private practise in the Philippines, nurse in New York and Germany, private nurse of Frank's mother till she died.

After retirement in 2001 they dedicated their life to traveling. They traveled almost non-stop from 2006-2018 and proved that it is possible to see almost 5.000 high-lights in 10 years. For them quality comes first, quantity is second. In quantity they want to belong to the top 10, but they want to excel in quality.

In 2019 they stopped traveling because of health problems. Their plan to travel for another about 2 years in order to achieve ultimate goals could not be materialized.

Teo shares the travel experiences on Facebook. He cares about the social contacts, thus he is loved by everybody. Here only 5 out of so many comments:

„the best well loved world traveler, God bless you always“, Geronimo Bulos, New York

„May your legs continue to carry you on great adventures across enchanting lands that most of us can only dream about“, Rolando Pasignajen, Las Vegas

„A special person who's been an inspiration to many and who willingly shared God's given blessings to family and friends“, Rosalie Roa, Manila

„you and uncle Frank brought the whole world in front of us in the comfort of our homes“, Maria Charito, Calgary

„next time you will be not in the world anymore, but out there in the galaxies“, Jordon Laguna, Illinois

We present a travel concept that we call “Travel Quality” (TQ). Quality may mean something different for every person, but there are reasons which make more sense than others.

- In 2014 we criticized the travel clubs for showing members in top positions who are obviously only aiming for points without having experienced regions in a meaningful way. Our point: Travel performances are measured in the wrong way. Clubs measured the number of countries (either UN or TCC countries) or later the number of regions, that is subunits of countries with a more or less clear logic. The main point was, the clubs were aiming at quantity instead of quality.
- Harry Mitsidis told me: “Your criticism is well taken, but I don’t have an answer for it.” Now things have changed, he tries to address the aspect of quality with the “Series”, about 30 lists of more than 30.000 sites.
- How do you measure and compare “quality”? Can you objectify it or is it only subjective? For some travelers backpacking or hitchhiking are low quality, for others it is the best form to immerse into a country. Some travelers go for nature, others for culture, others for people, many for all.

Just for a record?
North Pole, 9.2006

Or for commemoration?
Mission San Ignacio, Brazil, 12.2013:

Our travels aim since decades for quality. We are not only traveling extremely, we are striving for the best concept. It is not only to go from A to B it is about understanding why we do this.

Our presentation doesn’t want to be an egocentric view of our travels, which we can see often in the Internet following the motto “Kilroy was here”, every sentence starts with “I”, an orgy of egocentrism, “Look where I have been”, a show of graphics with many pictures.

But where is the “why”? Just points? Nobody really can be convinced by that.

There is something new at the horizon: The community of extreme travelers starts to change. More and more are now dealing with quality issues. A new trend.

We want to explain a travel concept not to show our travels. If we show aspects of our travels they only illustrate, show examples for the guidelines of our concept of quality, of mindful traveling. The examples will only prove the feasibility. We aim at explanation and discussion.

We want to share our concept and to stimulate criticism in order to learn and to improve. Our contribution is a profound systematic, a lot of research and a lot of travel experiences. One aspect is for us most important: We want fellow travelers to inspire to go for the extremes. This needs power. Its source is an attitude: Passion for the beauty of the planet. A positive attitude. This will lead to joy of traveling, travellust.

We are dealing with records as well - top performances in traveling and ways to achieve top performances. We don't say that we have the best concept. We only say that we are striving for the best one. We put highest demands on our concept. In quantity we only want to be among the top 10. But in quality we want to excel. If you want to discuss the best in quality you have to be in the top group of quantity otherwise nobody will listen.

So we have to explain, how we have determined our position, by what criteria. We will justify our leading position. This is no simple linear measurement but an evaluation of several positions and perspectives. An overview of all the perspectives you will find in the summary. But to illustrate all these different perspectives together with all the examples we think we need 104 pages.

In the core it seems to be simple: We measure the number of visited highlights. But the master list of 5.000 highlights is not yet published, thus it is not commonly acknowledged, we only can explain the concept, the "system of travel quality" with its 50 criteria. You will find it on p. 95, but we will develop that system further and will show the final stage in our book.

A landscape for movie sets, Tongariro, NZ, 11.2014

We will clarify that travel quality cannot be captured by one dimension. It has many dimensions. Thus we need 104 pages. You can condense it into two words: Intensity and Uniqueness. But very abstract. We do compress the concept in the summary but we want to illustrate the diversity of travel and to make the different dimensions vivid. Diversity will lead to quality.

Who travels better? Three models:

- 1) Queen Elizabeth II who traveled by jet or yacht in utmost luxury around the world and stayed in the best hotels? – or
- 2) Heinz Stücker, who cycled 52 years around the world, with no money, fighting daily for survival, saving every penny to pay the entrance fees, struggling for an overnight but getting a lot of support by locals, selling skillfully his story and - at the end - coming home with empty hands, but rich in memories? – or
- 3) Mr. Finn, who has the most miles and the most Concorde tickets from the first to the last, who is titled by the Guinness Book as the “most travelled”. Unbelievable: There is somebody who sits constantly in an aircraft and there are people indeed who call this traveling! For us a record in inefficiency if you measure miles traveled per highlights.

There is no way to reduce travel quality to simple formulas.

It starts with the selection of travel objectives. How careful you select the travel objectives determines the travel quality. The TBT/NM Series want to capture quality by many lists, museums, festivals, airlines... now about 30. Not adding sites but selecting will lead to quality. We propose only one list: 5.000 Highlights. Simple? No, because the term “highlight” is complex.

We will substantiate the essentials of travel quality (TQ):

1. TQ results from a careful selection of your travel objectives.
2. TQ needs a holistic perspective of life. It cannot be achieved in a single-sided way of life in which traveling is the only content.
3. TQ stems from a diversity of travel experiences, it is not achieved in one travel style, it is multi-stylistic.
4. TQ needs a concept, it cannot be achieved incidentally.
5. TQ is based on a curiosity and a positive attitude for experiencing the stupendous beauty of our planet, it cannot be achieved without passion.

Sharing Ideas with the Best

- We pursue the development of “travel quality based on highlights” for about 40 years.
- But the idea to take it to the extreme surfaced after we contacted an extreme traveler: Babis Bizas. We met for the first time during a trip to Wrangel Island in Aug. 2012. He has been observing our traveling almost weekly for 5 years.
- We contacted an illustrious group from the Travel Clubs to get a wider perspective.
- We – my partner Teodoro Murallon and I - reported almost daily in Facebook. From here we got a wide range of suggestions.
- During our sometimes extreme travels we met many very interesting people - people with the same passion – an invaluable source of information.

For athletes it is normal to go for the No. 1. For traveling it is unusual. But if traveling becomes an essential part of your life it is understandable. It is fulfilling to measure your achievements. Especially if you go for a somewhat vague objective like "to see the whole world". I have developed a huge data base for only one purpose: To measure if I have achieved my goal seeing the whole world. This was the core idea of my 5000 highlights list. The idea of ranking came when I entered a travel club in 2014.

The problem starts if you state: "I am the best" - the danger of becoming a narcissist, an extremely egocentric person who lives in his own world. But if you try to be objective and ground your claim on widely acknowledged criteria you are not a narcissist, you like competition and you measure achievements. Nothing is wrong with that.

Galapagos, Espagnola, 1.2014

For a competitive claim the criteria must be clear and widely acknowledged and you must be objective and fair. If you measure your traveling in regions like MTP the criterion is clear: That one is "the most", who comes closest to 875. But this is not widely acknowledged. That was the reason Harry founded TBT. Some people go for even lesser acknowledged criteria: Special territories, remote, difficult to access like Ashmore & Cartier, Clipperton, Chagos, Paracel, Spratly, Balleny, Scott. So not only one but several people approach the Guinness Book to get the title "The Most traveled man in the world". The base for this claim "the most" or to have been "everywhere" is small, only 959! And some of them cross only borders and shorelines. Is this objective or is it egocentric? We based our ranking on about 30.000 sites, 9 lists, all we had got. And we got verified in TBT/NM.

We are not saying "we are the best", we specify the criterion: "We are the best in quality - based on highlights". We want to differentiate from those who go for quantitative measures like countries, territories, regions, provinces. It is not enough for a "best traveler" only to cross shorelines and borders. You need a concept for traveling to answer the question why you travel. In Galapagos it is so clear: A mega highlight, the cradle of Darwin's Theory of Evolution. But for the majority of travel objectives it is not so clear. So a travel concept has to specify the criteria and that is what we do in the book.

This presentation makes a travel concept transparent. Our core criterion is the number of highlights but it comes together with a system of 50 sub criteria. We specify our claim "the best based on highlights" on our highlight list of 5000 sites. But: This highlight list is only an add-on. We use the 9 most well-known lists as the base for our claim, the largest base in the world. We think that this is a very solid ground.

Ranking and Traveling as a Life Objective 12

In 2015 I had been the No. 1 in TBT, by now 3 travelers are ahead of me. All of them traveled all their life, I only have 24 years in total. My question: Are they better? Some more borders and more time?

Travel Quality requires that traveling becomes an essential part of your life, it requires an intensity and broad spectrum that cannot be achieved by holiday traveling.

But if it is the only part of your life, you live one-sided.

A successful life should pursue at least three objectives: (1) love, (2) help and (3) knowledge (here acquiring knowledge by sight-seeing). This follows the Maslow pyramid of needs: Basic needs (loving), social needs (helping), ego-needs (sight-seeing).

Traveling should not be at the expense of the other two. It should come out of a full life, not a one-sided life model: Only traveling.

Therefore we go for a number of travel objectives – 5000 - which is feasible in 10 years, we go for a concept within a full life, after you have loved, helped others and now after you retired you go for a new challenge.

Quality traveling is embedded in a full life approach. But I admit, that is debatable. But if you only travel: Whom will you love? Only sex on the way? Whom will you help? Only spend some money here and there? No, we are talking about a life dedicated to love and help and not only dedicated to travel.

I ask: Those who only traveled throughout their lives, haven't they been very egocentric? Could it be that they traveled as a flight from themselves? Driven by something? They mostly say: They had no plan, but a yearning. The all-the-life travelers move opportunistically with a small budget if they have not inherited, always worrying about the transport. The transport possibility determines their schedule not the objective. If the bus doesn't stop, they miss it. When they talk it is about difficulties, accidents, border-crossing, fund raising, see p. 23. We leave the routine logistics to agents. We concentrate on defining the objectives. A different focus and we see more in less time.

„You belong to the „crème de la crème“ in travelling. You are a true travel guru. It is an honour to compete with you on the quantity of regions; of course I cannot compete in quality, your travel quality is unique worldwide.“

Valentin Sazhin, founder and owner of „Lodestar, International Tours, Brooklyn, NY“, member of the committee of „The Best Travelled“

„Congratulations, your website is great, you explain clearly that you are the best in quality travel, your achievements are impressive.“

„I had the chance to organize 3 tours, 120 days in the most difficult areas of Africa. I have experienced how thoroughly and systematically you travel. Congratulations for completing an enormous task and traveling with such an extensive itinerary. You are making history, indeed.“

Thomas Büchler, Switzerland, official verifier of „The Best Travelled“ Club

„I checked your countries and your regions on a cruise to Bouvet that we undertook together. It was a pleasure to work with you. In four days of testing, I ascertained how thoroughly you travel and how well and systematic you document. Your „Access“ data base is stupendous, your diaries are characterized by amazing exactness in facts. You certainly belong to the very elite of world travellers!“

Evaluations of Travel Entrepreneurs

1.2. Ranking:

Lissy Xu, Director, China Highlights, Guilin, China

"We had the privilege to organize Frank's last 3 travels to China in 2007, 2012, and 2016. With us he reached his goals - to see all provinces and all the World Heritage Sites in China. No one has traveled to China so wide and thoroughly according to my experience. In quality travelling throughout China he sets the benchmark. His great passion for China and meticulousness to detail deeply moved and inspired our team. He is a lead customer for our company."

Lissy Xu

Robyn and Patrick Woodhead, Owner and Founder of White Desert, UK and RSA. Patrick: First East to West Traverse of Antarctica World Record Holder Youngest and Fastest Team to reach the South Pole, Robyn: First South African woman to reach both North and South Poles. Both: Fellows of the Royal Geographic Society

"It was an honour to have such well travelled people as Frank and Teo at White Desert Camp in Antarctica. From the preparation and documentation for the great adventure to Antarctica, we all clearly understood your travel ambitions. The clients and staff all enjoyed your company and the trip was a true once in a lifetime experience and really inspirational. Helping them reach their dream of reaching the South Pole was a wonderful achievement for everyone."

Jorge Sanchez, the viajero, traveling most of his life and traveling with extreme performance, Email 2020:

"...everybody respected you for your deep knowledge about all the corners of the world.... everybody understood that you belonged to the crème de la crème in the world of travelers... no one could compare with you, with the exception of Greek traveler Babis Bizas, another great master."

Jorge Sanchez

Charalampos (Babis) Bizas, travel expert, extreme traveler, operations manager of „Cosmorama“, Athens, Russian Geographic Society, Wikipedia, most probably the most traveled man on earth. He gave us 7 evaluations from 2014 to 2016, here 3 of them:

„Their travel quality is unique, they did what nobody else did, systematically, thoroughly and with passion – I admire them.“

„You are the No. 1 in quality. You travel like everyone should do... Don't stop this superb style of travel. ...shortly you will be the MOST and BEST travelled person in the world. My respects.“

„Congratulations to both of you. You are the Best. No one else in the world is travelling so thoroughly. You know exactly what you are doing and you experience every step of your travel consciously. Gold bless you! My greetings and best wishes from South Pole.“

Roman Brühwiler, Switzerland, No. 5 in „The Most Traveled“, website „80tage.ch“, 2 world records: Most countries in one year and in 80 days. We appreciate his evaluation of our „Travel Quality Concept“ although his travel concept so far has been very different. His concept now – to see all subdivisions – around 4000 (see TBT Series) – began in 2007 as a formalistic approach. He changed it to experiencing and enjoying.

“I have witnessed your concept of „Travel Quality“ from the first page on. I think that this concept is not only acceptable, it has all the potential to become a benchmark. And it qualifies you to be one of the leading travel authorities worldwide.”

Pinelopi Bizas, Greece, wrote in January 2017 when we completed all UN-countries:

„You are the most thoroughly traveled man in the world. Unique!!“

Babis Bizas, Greece, wrote when I had left the clubs für health reasons, March 2019:

„Frank is the Patriarch of all travelers“

Our Credo: This is what we believe in

In a Royal Thai home we found:

- Life is a journey,
not a destination –

we continue:

- but a journey has a destination,
not one - but many destinations,
- how careful you choose them determines the quality of the journey,
- choosing borders will lead to no quality
choosing highlights can achieve the top,
- to stay at the top, the journey has to become an essential part of your life.

Our identity

- Exceling in travel quality
- Ensuring travel quality by highlights
- Developing a list of 5000 highlights
- Visiting 5000 in 10 years
- Sharing experiences almost daily
- Preserving UNESCO sites
- Traveling as a couple

Our slogan:

- Dream big, live full, travel extreme.

Our opinion:

- We do not see any alternative to travel for quality.
- Babis Bizas, arguably the most traveled, shares that point of view. But: He admits that he has not done it – always going for quality - and he thinks it is too late for him to change.
- Therefore his advice: „Everybody should travel that way“.
- Our advice for the young travelers: Go for quality, not quantity.
- Our opinion: Travel systematically.

We want to debate our point of view.

- ❑ Trade with natural resources, food and preferred goods:
 - Silkroad: A network, the main “road” connected Xian with Venice
 - British Indian Spice Trade: Britain with India
 - Trans-Saharan Trade: Mediterranean with Niger Basin
 - Incense Route: Mediterranean with Southern Arabia
- ❑ Exploration of regions, oceans, passages and science:
 - Vitus Bering: Russia and the North Pacific
 - Columbus: America
 - Cook, da Gama, and Magellan: All Oceans
 - Amundsen: South Pole and the Northwest Passage
 - Nordenskjöld: Northeast Passage:
 - Fitzroy and Charles Darwin with HMS Beagle: The Theory of Evolution
- ❑ Records in circumnavigations
 - Maritime: The first was by Magellan and Elcano with the ship Nao Victoria, 1519-1522
 - Fastest today: Francis Joyon and crew, 12.2016 / 1.2017 sailing with the Maxi trimaran in almost 41 days, 48.915 km
 - Aerial: The first: Eckener in the airship Graf Zeppelin, 1929: 21 days
 - First non-stop aerial circumnavigation by US Air Force in a B-50, 1949: 94 h
 - By balloon: B. Piccard, 1999, solo by Steve Fossett, 2005, who set > 100 world records
 - By helicopter: Dick Smith 1983
 - Time limits: “In 80 days around the world”. Michael Palin followed the route of Jules Verne’s novel. Roman Brühwiler, Switzerland, asked: How many countries can you “do” in 80 days? 135; - in 1 year? 194; – in 1 day? 22 (none was acknowledged by the Guinness Book)
 - Bicycle: Heinz Stücker, Germany, cycled around the world, 1962-2014. See in this presentation: “Spotlight on H. Stücker”, p. 22
 - Rolls Royce: Dan and Marilyn Walker, Canada/Costa Rica, 2007. See in this presentation: “Spotlight on Dan Walker”, p. 23
- ❑ Records in specific performances - Two of the world’s most astonishing travelers:
 - Erden Eruç, Turkish-born American: First person in history to complete an entirely solo and entirely human-powered circumnavigation of the earth, 2007-2012, on rowboat to cross the oceans, by foot, kayaks, canoes, bicycle, 66.299 km (Guinness Book), he will include all “Seven Summits”.
 - Vladimir Lyenko, Russian: A renowned scientist, the most spectacular rafter (down on rivers from all top peaks), circumnavigation on bicycle and car, along the Equator, from the deepest point (for him*) 3462 m to the Stratosphere, travelled along the Gold Rush Path, crossed on a yacht the Indian Ocean

Traveling is not defined by the miles you cover - it is defined by the dreams you fulfill.

Travelling is not about moving from A to B. Moving is a prerequisite for traveling. Traveling is about to experience. You should minimize the physical needs and maximize the experience. Our examples of extreme travelers showed that they aimed at formal records or at exploration, they achieved extraordinary performances. But: What have they seen? How much beauty and uniqueness?

None of the above mentioned traveled with the overall objective of experiencing sites, things worth seeing.

Our philosophy:
Travel quality by experiencing highlights.

Our record in quality:
Out of 5000 we saw 4700 highlights in 10 years
based on a concept which sets the benchmark in "Travel Quality". We wanted to find the maximum for quality sight-seeing: 5000 in 10 years non-stop. If you want to do more, you have to travel more. You can do it, but we have not found anybody who did. So more is not realistic. Our goal is not only to reach the most highlights but also to develop the best concept for traveling.

The concept is complex, thus 102 pages, because we have no single criterion like countries, regions, speed or time. Our concept is complex – 35 criteria (p. 95), but not difficult. We can condense it to two words, uniqueness and intensity, but then it will be abstract. To develop and enliven it we need 102 pages. The concept of "Travel quality", traveling for experiencing and not border-crossing, is for everybody, not only for supermen like Eruc and Lysenko. That's the good news. But timewise you have to be disciplined. That is the bad news. Really bad? We did it in 10 years or so – but everybody has to find his own pace.

1.4. Comparison

Setting a Standard for „Travel Quality“

The consequence of our ranking

If we accept, that we are leading in travel quality, then we should define this term clearly, because there is no world-wide acknowledged standard. We want to make a first step toward setting a standard.

- We are posting the concept of “Travel Quality” on the Internet to see the reactions, to see the acceptability of the concept.
- We want to set the standard for the selection of the objectives, for the definition of the 5000 highlights.
- We will show that this is kind of an “ultimate list” because it claims to be systematic and objective. And we will show that this list is the maximum: You can’t do more under realistic conditions. Lists of more than 5.000 sites are just lists, but no travel concepts. The only reason for our ranking is to find this maximum. The ranks mean almost nothing to us, we only care for our list!
- The concept of Travel Quality is the base and the framework for the highlight list. In other words: Our highlight list is not a stand-alone list, it is part of a travel concept. Sites are not on the list, that are not meeting criteria of a meaningful overall travel concept. This is the fundamental idea of our list.
- The list is the core of “Travel Quality” but not the full concept, which is managing the process of traveling. The process must be designed for the efficiency of logistics but also for an enjoyment of the experience of the travel sites.

Travel Clubs: Advantages and Problems

1.4. Comparison:

Travel Clubs enable the exchange of travel ideas and they set up lists that compare the performance of travelers.

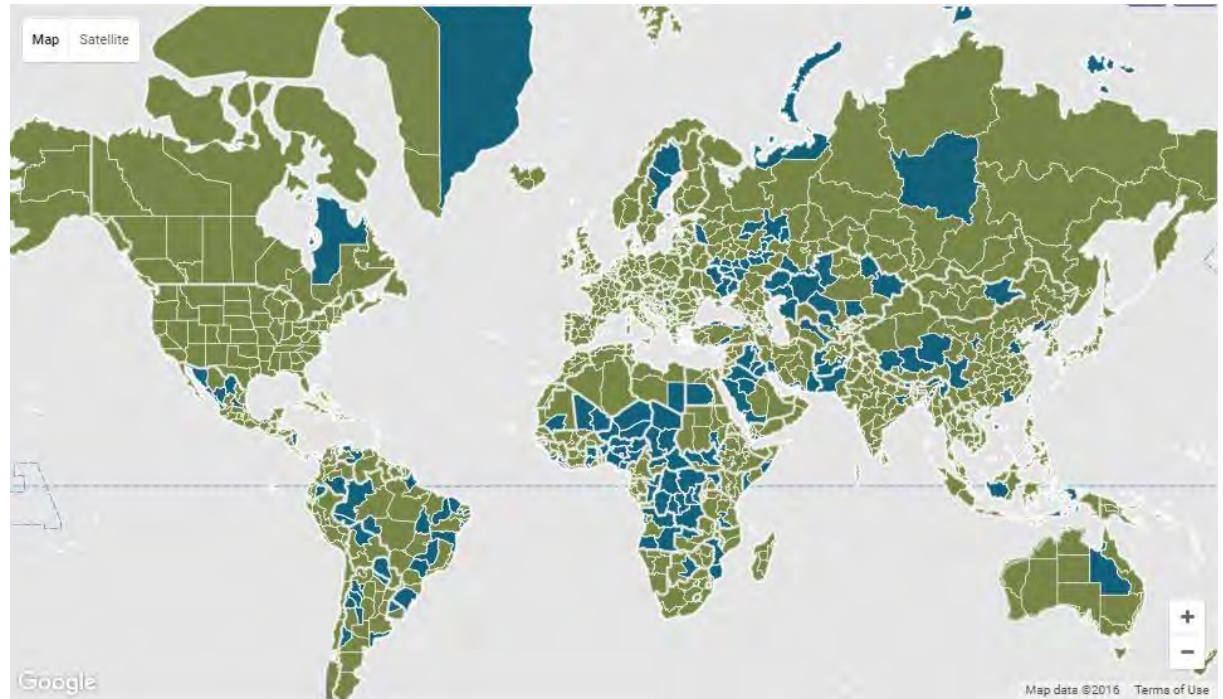

There are 3 global Travel Clubs:
TCC: Travelers' Century Club,
 325 countries. American-based.
MTP: Most Traveled People
 875 regions. American-based.
TBT/NM: The Best Travelled 1281 regions. European-based.

Their advantages:

- (1) Promoting travels to difficult regions,
- (2) doing the statistics.

TBT/NM has a good global map, a quick overview. And they have a fairly meaningful and consistent structuring of countries into their subunits:

My map according to TBT/NM as per May 2016. Here only as the start-up overview, it can be zoomed to any region and shows key data. What it does not show is to what extent you have covered the oceans. Blue: Missing regions Olive: Covered, in 2019 many more. For 2019-2021 total coverage was planned, but the health...

3 problems: (a) When you don't control the entries to the lists you can't be sure if the comparison with your fellow traveler is correct. (b) More important are the rules for „a visit“. If you „get a point“ for having passed the entry gates of an airport and having left the airport immediately through the exit gates – nothing else - clubs undermine their credibility. (c) Clubs are misleading in the sense that they are seducing their members to go for „points“, to compete on points, neglecting quality. In 2019 I left the clubs, so I can't show the actual coverage.

Heinz Stücke, born 1940, is an extreme traveler of its own kind. He apprenticed to a tool and die maker in Westfalia, Germany. He started his first big bicycle tour at 18, around the Mediterranean. At 20 he traveled to India and the Far East. He left home in 1962 at 22 with 300$ in his pocket and returned to his home town only after 52 years when he was 74 in 2014. He cycled 52 years, 40 of them with the same bike. He cycled 648.000 km through 257 countries and territories and used 22 passports. He still has 17 of them, the rest were stolen. He was in the Guinness Book of Records between 1995 and 1999. In 2000 the structure of the book was changed.

What fascinated me? Heinz has seen the world before terrorism and before mass tourism. He slept on top of the temple of the Jaguar in Tikal, on the top of the pyramids in Gizeh and under the arms of Christ the Redeemer in Rio. He rode his bicycle for 2740 km through all of Somalia, hassle-free. How far away from the conditions of today! And he financed all his travels on the way.

He returned with 100.000 photos, thousands of diary pages and “tons of memories”. His hip was damaged due to jerking and heaving his heavy laden bicycle across gullies and landslides and over rocks. He had done more than anybody on a bike, but finally he had to pay a price. Now he sits in a small town in Westfalia and – as he told me: “I live my life backwards”. He is sorting, framing and captioning his slides and tries to reconnect with encounters of his journey. He is supported by acquaintances. He sells photos and stage discussion evenings. He uses his collected travel paraphernalia for exhibitions. He is too proud to accept social aid. A matter of principle: Everyone should be responsible for himself. His relationship with TBT, now Nomad Mania is remarkable. He has no idea how he got on the TBT/NM list. In 2017 he was No. 1. He doesn't know anything about the club. Some years ago a budget traveler had told him in Barcelona about such clubs, about people collecting countries and the way they structure the world. Did he tick the list off for him? Heinz had never thought about collecting countries. He set himself the goals he had the money for.

In 2017 he still lived in an analogue world, no computer, he doesn't use Email. The only communication with him is to talk. When you talk with him there is only one way to do it: Listen. Yes, he encourages questions, but he answers them in his style wrapping them with his experiences. He talks about the bicycle and about how he got money selling brochures about his travelling, contacting agents, selling photos and features to weeklies. He says „My best idea was to sell my booklets.“ In Japan some days 200 or 300, each for the price of a cup of coffee. People are his priority, so he met many locals. People who saw their dreams in what he did, many supporting him. Only seldom he worked as a cleaner or painter. He is full of energy and enthusiasm. But he points out: „You have to be alone on your travels in order to be free.“ So most of his relations are short-lived „You always have to move on“.

Spotlight on Dan Walker

Teo and I traveled with Dan Walker and his wife Marilyn in 2015 on a remarkable cruise to Antarctica and the Atlantic ridge islands trying to land on Bouvet - the most remote uninhabited island in the world. Later I found out that he is one of the extreme travelers in the world, an epitome for transport-orientated travel style. His iconic travel with a Rolls Royce around the world in 2007 created more than all his cruise and flight trips his identity. Heinz Stücker is an epitome for transport-oriented travel style as well, but the opposite of Dan Walker: Both traveled with their transport medium around the world; Heinz with a bike for 52 years and 648.000 km, Dan and Marilyn with a "Rolls" in 4,5 months for 27.000 km on land.

Dan summarized on his website his famous trip: „The Rolls was the star performer“, not only on this trip but in his travel life. He bought it in 1990 as „near junk“ for small money, but invested more than that for refurbishment. He traveled before his „around the world“ trip with the Rolls already to 40 UN states, including all 51 US states, 11 Canadian provinces and 7 Greek islands. He got the idea for the trip by a planned rallye which never materialized. But the idea lingered on. He had a fulfilled professional and family life and he was looking for something big, the adventure of a lifetime. It was a big deal to get all the permits, especially for Russia and China. For China he had to fight hard and finally he won. He was 66, the car 50 years old. Dan and Marilyn started in Vancouver Island, crossed Canada, shipped the car to England, crossed Europe to Moscow, Irkutsk till Ulan Bator. And then they crossed the desert of Gobi on no roads just sand pistes till the Chinese border. In Shanghai they shipped the car to Vancouver. 27.000 km on land, 17,2 l/100km. In Russia they were guided or escorted and the evenings were filled by receptions of an automobile club. In China they were guided till Shanghai where they shipped the car to Vancouver. Marilyn did the photos. 110 are on the website, 70 of them are of the Rolls or car related items. „The trip was really all about the car, not us“, Dan wrote me. On all trips the car „never failed to proceed“. Altogether the Rolls did 68 UN states: World record for one car from Rolls Royce. The reason for a great love.
